

CEP Magazine – November 2019

Google releases new guidelines for employee discussion

By Sascha Matuszak

In a memo (<http://bit.ly/2k2Qal6>) released Aug 23, Alphabet Inc.'s Google informed employees that disruptive discussions in the workplace would not be tolerated. The memo specifically targeted “debates about non-work topics,” ad hominem attacks, and data breaches as unacceptable.

This document is only available to members. Please log in or become a member.

Become a Member Login