

CEP Magazine – September 2023

Nick Gallo (ngallo@ethico.com) is Chief Servant and co-CEO of Ethico and a lifelong student of healthy workplace cultures, based in Charlotte, North Carolina, USA.

Giovanni Gallo (ggallo@ethico.com) is co-CEO of Ethico and a lifelong student of healthy workplace cultures, based in Charlotte, North Carolina, USA.

Taking control of your career: The key to earning your worth

by Nick Gallo and Giovanni Gallo

“You gotta have a plan.”

Take Abraham Lincoln’s life as an example. Prior to becoming the 16th president of the United States, Lincoln worked as a lawyer, postmaster, and business owner. He made extraordinary efforts to attain knowledge.^[1] Each job he held was a step toward his ultimate objective. His professional path is proof of the value of careful planning and the significance of anticipating your next step.

A career plan is a compass that guides your professional journey. It gives you a distinct viewpoint that will help you overcome the difficulties associated with any position you are now holding. Without a strategy, it is impossible to retain the intentionality required to develop a strong career that enables you to make the biggest imaginable impact.

This document is only available to members. Please log in or become a member.

Become a Member Login