

ethikos Volume 34, Number 11. November 01, 2020 EU decision to invalidate Privacy Shield poses ethical questions

By Sascha Matuszak

The European Court of Justice's decision in July to invalidate the mechanism by which data was transferred between the European Union (EU) and the United States is primarily a question of data controls, but it also invokes ethical considerations that demonstrate crucial differences between the way the EU and the US operate.

This document is only available to subscribers. Please log in or purchase access.

Purchase Login