Supply chain disruption in Africa

By Sascha Matuszak

An [article^{\[1\]}](#) in The Africa Logistics discusses the major issues companies and entities in the industrials, manufacturing and transportation (IMT) sectors are facing due to COVID-19-related restrictions and regulations. According to the article, the barriers put up across regional and national lines to stem the spread of the virus have led to bottlenecks, delays and shortages as supplies and products are unable to move across borders. Critically, supply chain disruptions in Europe and Asia have put a crimp in the flow of industrial machinery and transport equipment to Africa, causing further delays and shortages.
