

CEP Magazine – September 2018

The other side of the story

by Shin Jae Kim

Shin Jae Kim (Skim@tozzinifreire.com.br) is the head of the Compliance & Investigation practice at TozziniFreire Advogados in São Paulo, Brazil.

The Brazilian Clean Company Act (BCCA) celebrated its five-year anniversary in August. This law created corporate liability for corruption and certain conducts against public affairs such as fraud involving government contracts. It also enhanced the authorities' enforcement activities by creating incentives for companies to cooperate with investigations and voluntarily self-report any eligible events under BCCA, and allowed companies to seek leniency agreements by admitting violations and (1) identifying other involved parties, and (2) providing evidence related to violations.

This document is only available to members. Please log in or become a member.

Become a Member Login