This is often a time to reflect and take an inventory of things accomplished during the prior year and to reset goals and resolutions.

2017 was a year of considerable change for me. My husband, our four-legged kid, and I lived like gypsies for much of the year during construction of a new house as we relocated from Texas to Florida, and I transitioned from a Chief Compliance Officer role at a prominent academic medical center to the world of consulting. I also started the year resolving to lose a pesky 10 pounds, and at the end of the year, I only have 15 to go!
