What does the 'E' in your 'C&E program' stand for?

By Jeffrey M. Kaplan

In the beginning—when Chapter Eight of the Federal Sentencing Guidelines went into effect in 1991—there were mostly ethics officers. By the early to mid-2000s, having a compliance & ethics (C&E) officer had become the predominant model. Among other things, this was in response to the enactment of the Sarbanes–Oxley Act in 2002 and amendments to Chapter Eight in 2004.
