

CEP Magazine – April 2020 Internal audit: Friend or foe?

By Jennifer L. Kennedy, BA

Jennifer Kennedy (jenniferkennedy@barberinstitute.org) is Vice President, Governance, Risk Management & Compliance at Barber National Institute in Erie, Pennsylvania, USA.

- linkedin.com/in/jennifer-kennedy

Internal auditors tend to get a bad rap. They're seen as adversaries who are there to find all your mistakes, report them up the chain, and then walk away, leaving you with more work than you had when they arrived. They're seen as the tattletales of the organization, as the pickiest of nitpickers who don't know what you do, how you do it, or how busy you (and your staff) really are.

This document is only available to members. Please log in or become a member.

Become a Member Login